NATION IS OBSERVING A HOLIDAY

Retail Establishments and Factories Close Their Doors Thru East.

FOOD STORES ARE DECLARED EXEMPT

Fuel Administration is Optimistic Over Results Brought About.

WASHINGTON, JAN. 21.—Heatless Monday added its handicaps to industry thru-out the nation today. Thru-out the entire eastern half of the United States the majority of retail establishments closed their doors in obedience to the mandate of the fuel commissioner, Dr. Harry A. Garfield.

Early reports received at the fuel administration indicated that the observance of the enforced holiday was general. The majority of the people in the cities made no effort to get down town from their homes; suburbanites remained close to the furnace, while the railroads and local transportation companies operated on their regular Sunday schedule. This plan will continue thru all Mondays until the end of March.

The only change made was to allow the stores which sold food to remain open thru the day instead of shutting down at 1 o'clock as had originally been planned. This concession made by Dr. Garfield followed notification reaching him from the majority of his subordinate fuel administrators that local sentiment would uphold dealers in food stuffs in defying the law. These local men who know the temper of their communities made it very plain to Dr. Garfield that under no circumstances could he expect to secure convictions against any man who kept his store open to sell food alone.

Altho the officials at the fuel administration's offices here insisted today that the general shutdown of industry is rapidly solving the fuel shortage thruout the country private messages reaching senators and representatives take sharp issue with this claim. These latter messengers insist that the railroads are not operating at top speed and that in addition the severe weather which prevails over most of the country makes top speed operation an impossibility even tho the railroad officials should desire it. And there is very great skepticism here in Washington over the attitude of the railroad officials. It seemed certain, however, that movement of empty cars toward the mines has at least been started.

RUSS AGENTS COMMUNICATE WITH GERMAN SOCIALISTS

(International News Service)
AMSTERDAM, JAN. 21.—Representatives of the Bolsheviks now are in direct communication with the German socialists. A Stockholm dispatch declared that Dr. Scheidemann and several other German socialist leaders are in that city conferring with delegates from the Russian radicals. The nature of the conferences was not divulged, but Scheidemann was quoted as saying "That it is too early to give up hope of seeing a peace conference either in Stockholm, Copenhagen, or Christiania."

GERMAN SOLDIERS SHOT DOWN MEN IN LABOR RIOTS AMONG AUSTRIANS

BERNE, JAN. 21.—So serious has the international situation become in Austria Hungary thru labor strikes and peace demonstrations that Germany has sent large forces of soldiers into industrial centers with orders to shoot down rioting strikers and to force them back into the factories, according to information received today from the Austrian frontier.

There was an unconfirmed report that martial law had been declared in the communities where the industrial tie-up is crippling the output of war supplies.

There was another big peace demonstration in Vienna on Sunday when old men and women marched thru the streets, accompanied by crippled soldiers, disabled in the war.

Brazen Spy Is Captured At Brooklyn

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, JAN. 21.—Officials at the Brooklyn navy yard are today holding in solitary confinement the most daring German spy taken into custody in this district. All information regarding the man's identity was refused. His case has been referred to Washington.

The spy made his way into the navy yards several days ago while garbed in the uniform of a U. S. marine. He was detected while attempting to leave the yard attired in the uniform of a foreign sailor. He had stolen the uniform from a ship which was docked at the navy yard for repairs.

Getting into the navy yard was easy as the guards don't stop uniformed men. Getting out would have been a much different matter as everyone leaving the yard must have written permission from the commandant. It would have been impossible for the spy to have left the yard in the uniform of a marine. He probably would have made his way but garbed in the foreign uniform if he hadn't met an officer from the ship from which he had stolen the uniform, as he was leaving.

The officer eyed him carefully and then halted him. After questioning him briefly the officer summoned a guard and had the spy placed under arrest. A search of the foreign ship revealed the marines uniform, which the spy had discarded. The official believe the man slept on the foreign ship several nights. This would have been easy, they stated, as the ship was not being closely guarded.

The officials have been unable to learn anything definite regarding the spy's activities while he was in the yard. A searching inquiry is being made to determine if any damage has been done to any of the ships in the yards.

TURK NAVY WIPED OUT BY BRITISH

Goeben and Breslau Are Lost in Dardanelles Sunday.

TURKEY BELIEVED READY FOR PEACE

Two British Monitors Sunk in Sunday Naval Engagement.

LONDON, JAN. 21.—Turkey's navy has practically been wiped out by the loss of the big cruisers Sultan Selim and Midulla, and the Daily News predicted today that this blow, together with the British victories on Turkish soil, will hasten the Ottoman empire into making peace. (The Sultan Selim and the Midulla were formerly the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau, which took refuge in the Dardanelles at the outbreak of the war.)

Two British monitors were sunk in the naval engagement which took place near the mouth of the Dardanelles on Sunday morning. Viscount Broome, a nephew of the late Lord Kitchener, was in command of one of the monitors and his fate is unknown. The Breslau was sunk and the Goeben was driven ashore where she was badly damaged by bombs dropped by British aircraft.

M'Adoo Hints Federal Ry. Control Is To Continue

WASHINGTON, JAN. 21.—American railroads will not be returned to private ownership for a considerable time after the close of the war. Director General McAdoo made this prediction to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today. He added that greater control of the railroads will be necessary than was in effect previous to government seizure of the roads.

PUGILISTS GET STIFF LECTURE FROM THE MAYOR

George Pence and George Franklin, both of this city faced Mayor Richardson on a charge of assault and battery Saturday night. The men were the principals in a fight taking place a short time ago and both swore out warrants for the arrest of the other. The case was dismissed by the mayor after a sharp reprimand was given the two men.

The names of the Wm. Martin Meat Market, the Central Grocery and the Gutting Meat Market were unintentionally omitted from the list of retail stores which closed Thursday afternoon according to the agreement among a number of the meat markets and groceries.

Instructions Are Offered For The County's Germans

Chief of Police John R. Mapel in his capacity as registering officer for all German enemy aliens in this county has requested that the following suggestions and instructions be registered, be published in order to prevent any confusion on the part of the registrants which is between 6 A. M. February 1 and 8 P. M. February 9. All men coming under this classification should read these suggestions over carefully and follow them out to the letter as they will possibly save themselves much time and trouble by so doing.

The suggestions follow: Persons required to register should understand that in so doing they are giving proof of their peaceful dispositions and of their intention to conform to the laws of the United States Government.

Every registrant should read carefully the form of registration blank handed him and ask the registration officer for explanation on all points not clear to him before attempting to fill it out. Registration officers are instructed to give registrants all possible aid in the way of explanation and advice.

Each registrant is required to turn in four unmounted photographs of himself not larger than 3 x 5 inches in size on thin paper with light background. All four photographs should be placed across the face of the photograph, so as not to obscure the features, if the applicant is able to write.

Three blank forms of registration affidavits must be completely filled out by the registrant, or his representative and must be produced by the registrant personally to the registration officer and be signed and sworn to by the registrant in the presence of, and before the registration officer, who will fill in the description of the registrant and supervise the taking of the fingerprints. If the registrant cannot write he must make his mark in the space provided opposite the signature space.

The finger printing is an identification system and follows the practice of the United States Army and Navy.

The registrant is hereby informed that he must present himself again before the registration officer who took his oath after 10 days but before 15 days from the last day fixed for registration in his district to obtain a registration card, upon which he must sign his name, or make his mark, and place his left thumb print in the presence of the registering officer.

Persons required to register should understand that in so doing they are giving proof of their peaceful dispositions and of their intention to conform to the laws of the United States Government.

AGREEMENT REACHED AT BREST LITOVSK BASIS FOR TREATY

Berlin War Office Pleased With First Effective Result Of Peace Overtures — Bolsheviki Opposes Agreement With Hostilities Against Ukrainians.

(International News Service)

BERLIN, JAN. 21.—The envoys of the German and Ukrainian governments at Brest-Litovsk have reached an agreement on peace, it was officially announced today.

According to the management, the agreement will form a basis for a treaty of peace.

In making the announcement the war office pointed out that this is the first time since the beginning of the war that a basis for peace has been found between any two belligerents.

The Ukrainian envoys went to Brest-Litovsk at the same time as the Bolsheviki delegates, but they assumed divergent attitudes.

Whereas the Germans refused to accept the Russian terms they agreed to treat with the Ukrainians.

Ukrainia is a large district lying in Southern Russia between the River Don and the Austro-Hungarian frontier. It borders on the Black sea.

Shortly after the Russian revolution Ukrainia declared her independence, establishing the capital at Kiev. When the Bolsheviki secured control of the Petrograd government hostilities broke out between Bolsheviki and the Ukrainians and it is still in progress.

The fact that there are no Austro-German troops on Ukrainian soil may have paved the way for easier negotiations between the Teutonic and Ukrainian governments.

Recently it was reported that German envoys were concentrating their attention upon Ukrainian delegates and that territorial concessions had been promised the latter at the expense of Galicia and Poland.

ALL RETAIL CONCERNS IN OHIO WILL BECOME STAMP SALES STATIONS

Retail mercantile associations of Ohio are being employed by the Ohio War Savings Committee to promote the sale of United States War Savings Stamps and Thrift Stamps.

A recent ruling by the treasury department removes the formality in connection with the establishment of sales stations for distribution of stamps and makes it an easy and simple affair for stores and offices frequented by the public to handle War Savings Stamps. It is the purpose of the state organization to make the purchase of War Savings Stamps as easy as it is to buy a stick of gum or a cigar.

Members of these state organizations are being approached with the request that they establish War Savings Stamps sales stations in their business institutions: Ohio State Pharmaceutical Association, Ohio Hardware Association, Ohio Retail Grocers Association, Ohio Retail Lumber Dealers Association, Ohio Retail Shoe Dealers Association, Ohio Retail Clothing Association, Ohio Retail Furniture Dealers Association, Ohio Retail Dry Goods Association, and Ohio Retail Jewelers Association.

Within a short time state headquarters of the Ohio War Savings Committee expects to have communicated with every one of the thousands of retail establishments in Ohio and to have organized each one into a sales station for the distribution of War Savings Stamps.

PARTNERSHIPS ARE NOT SUBJECT TO THE INCOME TAX, SAYS GOV'T. AGENT

H. A. Benness, government agent, would be entitled thereto, if distributed in this county to answer questions of taxpayers and help them to a better understanding of the income tax law.

Partnerships are subject to the excess profits tax and under that law must file a return and pay a tax as a partnership subject to the income tax and do they have to file a return?

Another frequent question asked is: "My partnership is subject to a tax under the excess profits tax. Can I deduct from my gross income my share of the income tax and do not have proportion of such tax?"

The individual income tax law provides that the Comptroller of Internal Revenue in ascertaining the income of a partnership shall include in the income of the partnership the income of each partner as a partner in the partnership.

Partnerships must file a return, however, for the calendar or fiscal year, whenever requested by the Comptroller of Internal Revenue, or any district office at the court house and file a correct statement of the partnership's income and explain any part of the law if they are unable to do so.

PRIVATE CARTON HERE ON SPECIAL DUTY ASSIGNMENT

Private Robert Carton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Carton, of Main street, arrived in Coshocton late Sunday on special duty which will require his remaining in Coshocton for several weeks.

Carton is with Battery A, of the Sixteenth Field Artillery, now stationed at Camp Grady, Charlotte, North Carolina. He has been temporarily detached from the regiment on special duty.

SERIOUS FOOD-SAVING
Repetition of food-saving exhortations becomes wearisome. But as long as the public falls short of putting those exhortations into effect, they must be continued. Well as our loyal and dutiful housewives and restaurateurs have done, they are not yet fulfilling their full duty. We have saved sugar, wheat and meat, but not enough.
Every authoritative statement from England or France or Italy emphasizes the seriousness of the food situation. No doubt conditions are better among our allies than among the Germans. But they are had beyond the conception of most of our well-fed and over-optimistic people.
Our allies are already on rations. Those rations eliminate nearly all the culinary luxuries we enjoy. They mean simple food, and the smallest quantity of it on which men, women and children can sustain their strength and do their work.
Our allies cannot maintain those rations unless we supply them with the material. And we cannot supply it unless we save.
Ours is the easiest role in the war. We are not asked to stint ourselves as our allies are doing. We are only asked to substitute our foods for theirs, because the others can be more easily shipped and used.
It's quite simple and easy. We must eat more corn, potatoes, beans and rye. We must eat less wheat, sugar, beef and pork, so that more of these foods can go to our allies. If we don't do that, we may lose the war. And it would serve us right.

THE "MULTILATED" SPEECH
It was accepted as a matter of course that a diplomatic document so important to Germany as President Wilson's peace-terms declaration to congress would not receive full and accurate publication in Germany. The Koelnische Zeitung furnishes corroboration of that fact, explaining that the German newspapers "do not think it worth while to publish the complete text" of the president's speech.
The Zeitung contents itself with printing only a few extracts of a speech "in order to give its readers a sample of Wilson's illogical and unheard-of views."
This is a familiar device of dishonest partisanship, whether in politics or war. Even American readers might look upon many of a president's war views as "illogical and unheard-of" if they were printed only in the form of short extracts, outside of their natural setting, without the accompanying facts and comment that render them logical and convincing.
Such newspapers as the Berlin Tageblatt, the Vossische Zeitung and the Deutsche Tageszeitung print what they declare to be the "full text" of the president's "inappreciable" speech, with the explanation that it was received in a "rather mutilated form." Casual inspection of that "full text" shows that the president's references to the partnership of peoples, "German intrigues," the "falschoods that have kept the German people in the dark," etc., are entirely omitted.
The omissions are easily understood, in the light of the facts in connection of our state department at Washington. Those facts provide detailed proof of what we have long known in a general way: the iron control of the German press by the German government. It consists of a set of instructions issued to the German newspapers by a censor at Berlin, telling the editors precisely how they are expected to suppress and distort the truth, to magnify or minimize facts, to ignore domestic troubles, to belittle the importance of the United States, etc.
The "mutilation" referred to by the papers mentioned, was done in this case by the helpful hand of the German government. In vital a matter, it doesn't do to let the biggest editors in Germany exercise their own slavish discretion.
So it happens once more that the only way of getting into Germany a statement of incalculable value to the German nation is to smuggle it across the trenches or drop it over the border from airplanes. That is being done. But it is a slow process. And because of its slowness, it is still necessary to continue the crude and distasteful alternative of shooting truth into Germany from gun-tuzzles.

KEEP YOUR LIBERTY BOND
The Liberty Bond is a government bond—as good a bond as the government has ever issued. Just as safe. Just as reliable.
Don't forget this.
Nor that in all its history the government has never defaulted.

New Year Musings : : WALT MASON
The New Year is a time to see to people safe and sane, and I've no doubt that it will be. I stress and strain. There'll be a thousand urgent calls for coal in socks and kegs, to purchase useful cannonballs, and shells and wooden legs. Our boys will go from training camps, from native shores they'll scout, to paralyze those Teuton scamps, and make them cease to Teut. And ever as the battles wax, and armies charge the foe, the burdens on our shapely backs the heavier will grow. Before this young year runs down we'll know, beyond all doubts, are the pikers in our town, and who the dead game scouts can't get by on bounce and brag, in erasial times like these: out of bunk about the flag won't help times over the seas. ne words and phrases loud and big won't put a toe to flight; e'll have to dig, and dig, and DIG, if we would show we're white. The piker cannot save his face, excuses won't go down. It's either glory or disgrace for every gent in town. The year will show us if men's souls are sordid or sublime, and slackers, wedded to their rolls, will have a beastly time.

one of its bonds. There is no better security on earth. It is as good as a greenback, so far as its safety is concerned.
It pays you four percent interest annually, just as much as you can get for your greenback at any savings bank. And its face value will never shrink.
There have been times when government bonds went below par, just as in recent months liberty bonds have sold below par. But there was never any valid reason why they should have done so.
And they never stayed there so very long at a time.
Since the war of 1812 there has never been an issue of United States bonds that failed to go above par. Some dropped below for a time but they always rose again.
Five percent bonds due in 1865 sold at 127 in 1863.
Six percent bonds due in 1881 sold at 123 in 1873.
Four percent bonds due in 1907 sold at 130 in 1889.
Another four percent issue due in 1925 sold at 129 in 1901.
Two percent bonds due in 1930 went to 109.

And the day is coming when these Liberty Bonds will sell above par. Where the Government bonds went below par there was always just one reason. Someone needed money quickly. In order to get it bonds were offered on the market for whatever price they would bring. This happened usually in tight money periods. With normal conditions they went back to normal values.
Loss is impossible upon a government bond investment. Back of these bonds is all the wealth of the nation, something more than $250,000,000,000. Every dollar of this wealth can be taxed by the Government for the redemption of its bonds.
So long as there is a United States its bonds will be the best investment on earth. No other country is so rich; no other has such a ready back of its bonds.
Don't sell your Liberty Bonds. Keep them. You will be rewarded by having the price equal and exceed what you paid for them.

Financial Letter
NEW YORK, JAN. 21.—Events of a startling character come thick and fast, the drastic coal order of the Government being the last example. Criticism is easy and should not be indulged too freely, because it is undesirable to embarrass an overloaded Government which is already doing its utmost to meet a most difficult situation. The difficulty in the coal situation is twofold. First, production; second, distribution. Just which is most serious does not yet appear. Production has been inadequate for several well known reasons, one being the diversion of considerable labor from coal mining and the frequent unwillingness of labor to increase the output. This is a problem that ought to be solved without difficulty. The miners if rightly handled could probably be induced to do their share toward winning the war by increasing their output. As for the transportation problem, that is unquestionably a grave one, but certainly not unsolvable. Consignation is a problem for experts, not amateur regulators. The severe weather may have aggravated a bad situation, but other causes contributed

New York Day-By-Day
By O. O. McINTYRE
NEW YORK, JAN. 21.—As Samuel Pepys would record in his diary: Up early and to my dentist to have a tooth drawn which he did with great ease and thence for a walk thru the town where I saw Sir William Burns, the thief catcher, and Dr. Frank Crane, the scrivener, and to the Waldorf where came many notables to luncheon to pay homage to a fine lad who is ordered to sea.
To the silver-mine to buy a tinker and saw there a jewel studded cigarette case, costing 99 pounds, made for one of the bloods of the town who's grandfater used to halloo his breeches with coonskin. And in an apothecary shop I did hear a young man ask for some lotion to whiten his hair albeit the young whippersnapper was only a few years past weanung.
Great talk and worry by those who must pay the income tax that they will do it right for there is high talk that many are to be placed in gaol but such matters bother me not a whit and there are times that it is a blessing to be poor, it seems.
Home on the omnibus where I saw Miss Edna Ferber who is shortly to go to France. And the omnibus collector, a cheerful soul, did refuse to stop at a crossing for an aged woman and she beat the rogue roundly and the rest of the fares applauded.
Came in the afternoon Lisle Bell and Mistress Bell and he tells me of his success as a free-lance journalist and versifier and how his people did discourage him from coming to the metropolis.
In the evening to Mr. Johnstone's and found his wife and maid with much ado had made shift to spit a great turkey sent from Long Island, and came many gay persons in especial Captain Donald who told much of the atrocity of the Huns in Flanders.
We had a fine dinner, good music and a great deal of wine. I very merry. Heard that Robert Wildhack, the artist, had gone to California for to the railroad breakdown; the Interstate Commerce Commission itself not being entirely free of responsibility. The drastic order of the Fuel Administrator who probably a mistake, will hasten the solution of the crisis, which incidentally affords a notable lesson upon Government efficiency in business.
The war offered no events of particular significance; winter having imposed a check upon all military operations. Experts opinion is that Germany is preparing for a drive on the Western front; but if so this causes no apprehension among the Allies, who appear confident of holding their ground. Meanwhile our own efforts are being pushed with all possible speed in order that an American army of considerable size may be able to take the field in the coming spring, and so hasten an end to the struggle. Signs of internal dissensions and weakness multiply in Germany; and therein perhaps lies the greatest hope of peace. Certainly peace rumors grow more and more persistent every week, and with them a belief that the coming German drive will be the supreme effort preparatory to fresh peace negotiations.
One of the persistent factors in the security market is the high rates of interest resulting from world-wide wastage of capital, and any further advance would be regarded unfavorably altho this condition is not in sight, and it is satisfactory to note that the world's money markets are easier just now than for several months. The last instalment upon the second Liberty Loan was paid this week, which leaves the money market temporarily free of Government demands. There is more or less expectancy regarding the rate to be paid on the next loan, the announcement of which is expected at no very distant date. In view of relatively high rates for money the market over, and the decline in market value of the second loan, the expectation is for a 4 1/2 per cent rate, altho on the other hand views are expressed favoring a 4 per cent rate with special privileges or exemptions to stimulate distribution. Or why is not this an opportune time to put out a 365 three-year Treasury note bearing interest at the rate of one cent a day; such notes being of easy calculation and convertible into 4 per cent bonds at maturity? Such a note would generally be recognized as money drawing interest.
The railroad outlook is confused by uncertainty concerning the attitude of Congress toward President Wilson's recent recommendations for Government control. The present congestion of transportation is naturally an adverse factor, since January expenses are almost sure to exhibit heavy increases. Mr. Wilson's recommendations to Congress, however, will certainly receive serious consideration, and much of the strength of prices the last few days is due to the statement of President Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio that the President's recommendations, if carried into effect, would mean the maintenance of railroad dividends on the basis of the George Broadhurst has just returned from London where he met George Bernard Shaw. He has always been a great admirer of things Shavian and tried to get Shaw to talk of his success in America. Shaw veered away from the subject and so Broadhurst discussed other Americans but Shaw showed no interest. The name of James J. Corbett came up accidentally. Shaw showed great interest and Broadhurst told him of Corbett playing in "Cachel Byron's Profession." "A great man that Corbett," said Shaw. Evidently gentleman Jim is the only man in America that interests the famous writer.

Tennessee women are the most beautiful in New York—that is according to the newspapermen who attended the dinner of the Tennessee Society in New York. past three years. Railroad securities are selling at the lowest prices in a long period, the standard issues yielding about 6 1/2 per cent on current market values. It would seem, therefore, that they had fairly discounted all known uncertainties, including the remote factor of Government ownership.
The coal order had but a temporary effect upon security markets, the decline which at first resulted being followed by quick recovery. Many took the view that any temporary loss from shutdowns would be offset by the safety against a coal famine, which might have caused still greater inconvenience. The general financial outlook is of course much confused and governed almost entirely by events from day to day. The business situation is somewhat similar, and there is a general quieting down, particularly in directions where high prices are restricting production or interfering with new projects. The latter are of course at a minimum owing to the necessity of diverting all new savings to support of the war. In consequence the various war industries are running at top speed, and a more intense activity is to be expected rather than slowing down. The whole nation is

NEED OF CENTRALIZED AUTHORITY IS VOICED BY THE CONGRESSMEN

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, JAN. 21.—The American government today stood facing the prospect of the most radical reconstruction in its history. Congress in a determined mood, insisting, despite President Wilson's reported opposition, that a cohesive central government must take the place of the present system of divided authority.

The president, it is realized can veto the reconstruction measures now before congress and probably could hold a sufficient number of his followers together in one of the houses to sustain the veto. Supporters of the bills today expressed doubt whether the president would go to the length of vetoing the measures, in face of the sentiment in congress. Such an extreme act, they point out would mean the sacrifice of much harmony between the legislature and executive branches of the government.

Regardless of the executive attitude, the backers of the bill determined today to carry their fight to the last trench. They declared that only by unyielding insistence could they sufficiently emphasize their deep seated conviction that the present system of government is inadequate to meet the tremendous pressure of the war.

The senate military affairs committee today put the finishing touches to its war cabinet bill, to consist of 3 members out ranking the cabinet proper in authority and second only to the president. Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the committee expected to introduce the measure in the senate today. At the same time he was prepared to call up for consideration the measure creating a munitions dictatorship to take charge of the enormous task of buying America's war supplies.

Secretary of War Baker has been studying the reconstruction measures over the week end. He is believed to have discussed them with President Wilson. Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, a democratic supporter of the bills, talked with Secretary Baker and expressed hope that the secretary would give them his support. Congress was looking for President Wilson to define his attitude on the measure early this week.

SOCIAL REVOLUTIONARIES PRECIPITATE A REIGN OF TERROR AT RUSS CAPITAL

(International News Service)
COPENHAGEN, JAN. 21.—A reign of terror has followed the forcible dissolution of the constituent assembly by Bolshevik troops, said a dispatch from Petrograd today.

Moore & Meade
What Moore & Meade Say Is So

M. Kokoshkin and M. Shinkareff, both members of the cadets and former members of the cabinet, have been assassinated by a band of Bolshevik sailors and workmen, and other members of the Bolshevik group. They were arrested for their political activities, but became ill in the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul and were removed to a hospital. During the night a band of armed sailors and workmen broke into the hospital and killed the invalids in their beds.

Leaders of the social revolutionaries whose control of the constituent assembly brot about its dissolution are threatening "war to a finish."

The central committee of the Soviet has appointed a commission to investigate the shootings that marked the opening of the assembly.

Lenine denied the Red Guards were responsible but at the same time declared that the Bolsheviks would enforce socialist principles upon Russia if it took civil war to do it.

Historic Paving Stones.
There are several remarkable historic paving stones in Edinburg upon which the visitors make a point of standing. One is the Heart of Midlothian, a heart formed in stones marking the spot where the old Tolbooth stood. Another is the paving stone in the Grassmarket which marks the spot where the old gallows stood on which, in the words of the old records, "hundreds of covenanted glorified God," and the third is a little square flagstone bearing the inscription, "J. K., 1572." It marks the spot where John Knox was buried, once the churchyard of the cathedral, now in the middle of the thoroughfare.

Write Cheery Letters.
One girl has a plan which has worked out admirably. She never writes any of her troubles to her people. She decided when she started out in life for herself that she would never write of her worries. If she were in any real difficulty she would use the telephone. And she would use it only to solve a problem which could not be solved in any other way. So far she has been able to work out all her problems without writing of her worries. She has never telegraphed, because she has found that with earnest effort she has been able to work out all of her own difficulties.

Near Riots Result From Fuel Order

CLEVELAND, JAN. 21.—Disturbances which in scope approached the proportions of riots resulted today from the observance of the first "heatless Monday" in Cleveland.

Confusion resulting from conflicting instructions received from federal and state fuel administrations caused thousands of workmen to report at plants which had been ordered closed. The Cleveland Street Railway Co., figuring on greatly reduced traffic, had curtailed the number of cars to a minimum and angry crowds, gathered at cross-town intersections, shivered in the zero temperature and professedly cursed the "heatless" order while they struggled to enter by force the already crowded cars. Minor injuries to a number of persons were reported.

A report sent early today to Dr. Garfield said all industries included in the provisions of the order had closed down.

Fiery Eczema and Skin Eruptions

Readily Yield to This Old Remedy

Successfully used for fifty years

Eczema and similar skin troubles come from a disordered, impure condition of the blood, and they can only be cured by giving the blood a thorough cleansing, and removing from it all traces of impurity.

This is why S. S. S. has been used so successfully in hundreds of cases of Eczema and other skin eruptions.

This wonderful remedy is without an equal as a blood purifier, being probably the oldest blood medicine on the market. It has been sold by druggists for fifty years.

The Message Of 'Thrift Day'

Thrift Day—February 3rd—Brings A Message

It is a message of hope, of reassurance, of opportunity.

Back over years which have yielded pleasure, but not profit; in which neither health, nor wealth, nor time, nor prospects have been conserved, the mind's eye travels as over a barren waste.

Too many of us, when we look back find ourselves today just where we were a year, perhaps several years ago. We have lived each day for itself. We have planned to start the practice of thrift "tomorrow"—but tomorrow has failed to come. Our good intentions have brought us no nearer our goal.

But Thrift Day holds out to every one of us a BIG IDEA.

In Thrift Day there is inspiration for all the three hundred sixty-five days of the year!

For on Thrift Day we hear men and women say:

"I can and I will get ahead. I will live with a purpose, and see my purpose thru. I will improve my time by greater industry, by reading and by good associations. I will conserve my health and build up my body instead of tearing it down. I will live within my income, and put at least a little aside out of everything I receive. This I will begin to do now, on Thrift Day. I will preserve 'till next Thrift Day and I know that it will pay."

They express the working principles of that great character builder which we call Thrift. Without it no lasting success has ever been attained, whether by individuals or by nations.

"Thrift, when it has taken root as rapid growth," said the great philosopher Franklin. Each day the habit of good management becomes more strongly fixed, and progress is more rapid.

Thrift Day—February third has been the starting point for many successful careers. It has marked the change from wastefulness and thoughtlessness to providence and progress in many lives. Each succeeding Thrift Day holds new inspiration for those who read its message into their lives.

To them, it becomes a day of commemoration, not over some historic event of centuries past, but of the first real constructive forward step in their own lives, the biggest day, measured by results, that they have ever lived.

Thrift Day, 1918, is at hand. It unfolds before us a beautiful vista of opportunity. Those who failed to heed its message last year, and in years before, will say on February third, "I can and I will get ahead—I will practice Thrift."

RUSSIAN PUBLICIST TELLS SOURCE OF LENINE POWER

By EDWARD PRICE BELL.

LONDON, JAN. 21.—Explaining the power of Nikolai Lenine and Leon Trotsky, a well known Russian publicist now in London said to me today:

"First—Land hunger on the part of the Russian peasant is his sole incentive to that Land hunger caused him to take part in the war; to him a successful war meant merely a solution of the land question along lines suitable to himself. Such lines were proposed by Alexander Kerensky, but Kerensky acted slowly, while Lenin moved swiftly. For the Russian peasant the war is over simply because he thinks he has obtained his land. He is uneducated and can be made to appreciate only material advantages. In his village far from the front he is unmoved by any sense of personal danger.

"Second—Lenine and Trotsky promised the peasants deliverance from the power of the clergy. Western talk about the popularity of the Russian clergy is a fable. Only the peasant women have any respect for these men. By the majority of the male peasants the clergymen have been immemorably identified with czarist tyranny. The Russian peasant is deeply religious, and just because he is so he despises the clergy. If you went to a village church in Russia you would have no trouble in seeing that the officiating minister was cordially hated. When Russian peasants standing in church off up pray they ask the Almighty among other blessings to grant them religion from their nominal spiritual leaders.

"Third—Only one-third of the Russian peasantry owns private property. This third lives in Siberia, the Ukraine, the Caucasus, Transcaucasia, and Turkestan, all of which are now organized as republics. These are the people who oppose the Bolsheviks. All the peasants of northern Russia are deprived of property. They do not understand its meaning and have no respect for it.

"With these northern peasants Lenine and Trotsky are all powerful because they stand for what we may call anarchy. Fortunately the balance of power as between the property owners and non-property owning Russian peasants lies with the former. Siberia, the Ukraine, the Caucasus, Transcaucasia, and Turkestan represent 35 per cent. of the total wealth and at least 65 per cent. of the total capacity of Russia.

"What will issue from the complicated situation nobody can predict. From what one can see now if the Bolsheviks are content to confine their sway to northern Russia they will not be attacked by the new republic. Apparently also the Bolsheviks are inclined to restrain their rule in northern Russia. Perhaps they are painfully aware of the insecurity of their rule even there. If the republics have then way Russia will be organized on a federal basis.

"But Germany may decide the fate of Russia. Just now she is showing all the signs of being ready to back Lenine and Trotsky. The so-called hitches in the negotiations at Brest-Litovsk are only manoeuvres on the part of Germany to test the influence and power of the Leninites. Once the Leninites demonstrate their true weakness no Germans should back them. On the other hand, should they demonstrate their strength the Germans would break with them. In my opinion the allies should envisage the whole Russian situation and give vigorous support to these elements which stand for law and order as well as for liberty, while not needlessly irritating and stirring the indignation of those who seem to us so extreme in their views as to postulate the destruction of civilization."

Uncle Sam Loses A Bet

By EZRA WEED of The Vigilantes

When I was young and sporty, (and I ain't so old, at that!) I caught a little animal no bigger than a cat

I reckoned I could tame him and raise him for a pet. So I took him home and fed him, and I called him LaFollette.

That's French for foolish, playful, mischievous, -to be plain, A kind of village cut-up that's always raisin' Cain.

A pretty little fellow, with his perky pompadour; You'd ought to see him preen himself and strut across the floor

We pampered him and stroked him and praised him to his face, Till I guess he got to thinking, 'he was owner of the place

But laws! you couldn't tame him any more than you could tame A whirl of flyin' road dirt that goes the way it come

He was harmless as a kitten as long as he was pleased, But full of sin and Satan the minute he was teased.

You couldn't call him dangerous nor not exactly wild, But he had a way of actin' that got the neighbors riled.

Why no! He never bit me, He didn't have to bite, He had another recipe for puttin' up a fight

He didn't even have to scratch, He didn't have to bulge, The Lord gave him a unique way of payin' off a grudge

He'd hide behind the bushes and wait for you to pass, Then cover half the township with his German poison gas,—

A sort of invitation, like Trespassers beware! You didn't wait till you was hit to get away from there;

You just would naturally light out and seek a fairer clime, His little propaganda was potentier than crime.

The women would come runnin', the children all would yell, And every body sniffin' of that blamed unholly smell.

And once, by George, in the Town Hall when all the folks were met For a patriotic rally, in waddles La Follette

Right down the aisle, and looked around like he was in a rage, There weren't a seat reserved for him in the center of the stage.

Why wasn't he invited to kindly take the chair,— With wavin' banners and a band paradin' in the square?

They can't have a Town meetin' with out him, he'll let them know! He ought to be elected as Select-man long ago—

As impudent as blazes! And then, Sir, in a jiff He up and fills the blessed place with one infernal whiff.

Well, that was past endurin', and the neighbors told me so, They kind of intimated I had better let him go.

They says, "Look here now, Uncle, that pesky pet of yours, He got you into trouble, as sure as you are born.

"He ain't a thing of beauty, and he ain't a mite of use, He's just a plain darn nuisance, You'd ought to turn him loose

"Leastwise you'd ought to cage him and keep him on a shelf, Where he couldn't do no mischief." I says, "Well, help yourself"

"There's things in pole-cat nature," I says, "that you forget; If you've a mind to study 'em, just tackle LaFollette"

Letters From The Boys

A letter from John Siegel, now stationed on the U. S. S. Florida on foreign service has been received at his home on South Seventh street here. Siegel's mother died after he had written the letter and it is to her that it is addressed. Following is the letter:

My Dear Mother:

I received your letter of the eighth, yesterday and was very glad to hear from you and also glad to get the clippings from the paper as a little news goes good over here.

I am still enjoying good health and hope that this finds you the same way. Well Frank is still looking is he? Well tell him to have a good time while he is on the ocean as no one knows what is going to happen in this war. If I could only tell you some of the things that I saw yesterday I would be writing all day but the censor prohibits it and that is the only thing why I cannot tell you.

Yesterday was my first time on land for over a month and I wouldn't take a thousand dollars for the time of liberty I had. We were permitted to an ancient city yesterday for liberty and I saw some of the prettiest scenery imaginable and also visited several old historic spots. When going thru high school I always had a desire to visit that place because of several stories I read in school and now my wish is fulfilled. I bought several trinkets and have placed them in a sealed iron box which I will not open until we get to the states again. I cannot mail them to you as they would give away where we are at and wouldn't pass the censor. You mentioned in your letter of having two feet of snow there. I haven't seen any snow this year yet to amount to anything. We had a very pleasant day for Xmas but no snow. I received the money sent me O. K. and thanks for it. I will not need any from now on as I have all the clothes I need now. I haven't received the Xmas box yet but I suppose that it will come in on the next mail. While ashore yesterday I saw men who were home on Christmas vacations from the trenches. I pitied the poor fellows because they have to go back there this Tuesday. I also saw some German prisoners they were taking to camp and one of them (who could talk English) said: "Well my American friends, the people here are glad to see us."

We have had better treatment here than we had at Norfolk, Va. I wish you could see some of the fellows bringing out foreign money.

It was better than a circus, I guess. I have run out of news and will close for this time. Will write again soon. Don't worry about me as I am satisfied and am enjoying good health. Give my love to all and kiss the children for me. From,

Your loving son,
John Siegel,
U. S. S. Florida,

Resolve: To Do Away With Wash-Day Drudgery

Perhaps you think, Madame, that you are saving money by doing the washing yourself. But you're not, and you're going to live to regret it, if you continue. Your health won't stand it—a woman's constitution was never meant to endure the backaches and the drudgery of washing and ironing at home. And if you keep it up, you are going to give way some day and the health that you've lost, plus the doctor bills that you are going to pay in trying to recover, will show you too late that you shouldn't have subjected those delicate organisms of yours to such a strain.

With our modern machinery we are able to do this work cheaply, and just as well and sanitariously as you would yourself.

Make up your mind to be relieved of wash-day drudgery, during the coming year, by sending your laundry to us.

GERMANY LACKS FOOD FOR BOTH HUMANS AND CATTLE

LONDON, JAN. 21.—The political situation in Germany and the relations with Russia continue to be agitated in the German press, although there appear to have been no fresh developments of especial significance. An article quoted from German newspapers, received by way of Switzerland, gives an idea of the trend of feeling in relation of these questions. The Frankfurter Zeitung warns its readers against undue optimism in regard to the negotiations with the Russians, whom it accuses of attempting to hinder the proceedings, both at Brest-Litovsk and at Petrograd, for their own interests.

The Volksstimme of Mannheim, a Socialist paper, says that serious popular demonstrations against the German annexationist policy occurred at Budapest and other towns in Hungary and Austria after Chancellor von Hertling made his statement in the Reichstag. These outbreaks, the newspaper adds, are symptomatic of what might happen in the dual monarchy if the negotiations should be broken off on account of the German policy.

No Food For Cattle

Reports continue to be heard of the breaking up of meetings arranged by the Annexationist Fatherland party, but it is difficult to ascertain to what extent this movement has been carried.

The Deutsche Tages Zeitung publishes agricultural reports showing that, in consequence of the shortage of fodder, the deadweight of cattle sent to the Berlin market is only one-half the normal, and that large numbers of milk cows must be slaughtered to provide the prescribed meat rations.

A telegram from Rotterdam says that, beginning today, all railroad passenger traffic in Germany is being reduced 60 per cent. The published explanation is that foodstuffs and other goods which have accumulated at certain centers must be distributed. Correspondents who send the reports to London say, however, that there is every reason to believe the transfer of troops to the western front is the real reason, adding that it is reported these troops are to be moved suddenly for a concentrated offensive.

White Plague Ravages

The Times publishes a long report, attributed to a neutral who has made an extended stay in Germany, describing internal conditions. It does not differ to an important extent from similar reports in the past. The writer reiterates that the effects of the food shortage are severe, especially among the children, who everywhere show signs of under-feeding. It is apparent that tuberculosis is working havoc, especially among the young, while contagious dysentery, which was a serious scourge in the summer, has not ceased with the arrival of winter. The decline in the birth rate, this observer continues, is causing great anxiety, especially in view of the loss of life in the war and the spread of disease.

The shortage of coal in Berlin is another source of trouble. After enumerating the difficulties the correspondent writes:

"Nothing but the iron grip of Prussian militarism restrains the nation from making more pronounced advances to its adversaries than any which have yet been made. The Germans are longing for peace, but they want peace with victory. They no longer abuse their enemies, as in the early days of the war. Doubtless the shortage of supplies had much to do with the change before the discipline of fasting. This accounts for very much in recent developments of German policy."

FORMER FRENCH MINISTER GOES ON TRIAL TODAY

(International News Service)

PARIS, JAN. 21.—Former Minister of the Interior Julia Malvy was placed on trial today on the charge of holding treasonable intercourse with the enemy.

The case will be conducted before the senate which is sitting as a high court of justice. The demand for the impeachment of Malvy arose in the chamber of deputies following publication of charges against him by the newspaper L'Action Francaise.

M. Malvy himself proposed his own trial on the treason charge.

CONLEY LOOKED UPON AS TOUGH MAT GLADIATOR

Ed (North Pole) Conley, middleweight wrestler who meets William Nimnich at the Sixth street theatre Friday night is reputed to be the best man whom the local wrestler has yet met in this city.

Conley, who is the training partner of Paul Bowser, champion middleweight, of Newark, states that he is confident of winning the bout and will make Nimnich step some to throw him. Nimnich is just as confident that he can throw Conley and it is certain that a good match will result.

Nimnich will meet Matty Matsuda, champion welterweight of the world at the chamber of commerce hall at Columbus Wednesday night. He has agreed to throw the Japanese wrestler twice in 30 minutes and those who follow the sport predict that he will have his hands full as Matsuda is one of the cleverest wrestlers in the game. Thirty minutes is not considered sufficient time for any middleweight to gain a single fall over the Jap, but Nimnich has agreed to attempt the task.

BOLO PASHA'S PAYMASTER IS UNDER ARREST

WASHINGTON, JAN. 21.—A complete report of the arrest of Adolph Pavensstedt, wealthy retired banker, friend of Count Johann von Bernstorff and paymaster of the "Bolo Pasha," fund at the Lake Placid hotel, Northern New York, was received by Assistant Attorney general John Lord O'Brien today. The arrest, officials said, was made under the alien enemy act, but no explanation as to the reasons for it were forthcoming. In fact department of justice officials seemed a trifle peeved because the arrest was made with brass band methods.

Instructions regarding the case have already been telegraphed to the deputy marshal in charge but the nature of these instructions are withheld. It is expected, however, that Pavensstedt will be arraigned without delay before a federal commissioner of judge in the district in which he was arrested and held for the action of the Washington authorities.

Officials intimated that when this action is taken, the wealthy banker will be sent to join other German friends in the big detention camp in Georgia.

Pavensstedt formerly was president of the banking and exporting firm of G. Amsinck & Co. of New York.

COSNOCTON HIGH LOSES GAME AT WEST LAFAYETTE

West Lafayette high school defeated Coshocton high at the college gymnasium at West Lafayette, Saturday night by the score of 23-17.

Altho the Coshocton boys played a splendid game, but they were beaten out by a few points by the heavier West Lafayette team. The play was fast and rough during the entire period of the match. The visitors claimed they were handicapped by the non-observance of the rules of the game by the West Lafayette referee.

IMAGINATIVE HEROES

By JUNIUS B. WOODS
WITH THE AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES IN FRANCE, JAN. 21.—Always the average soldier is a romancer, but compared to the young soldiers who stand in front of the candy shop he is a piker. War has developed and so have men's imaginations. The seasoned campaigner spins his yarn to the new recruit and the latter bides his time to weave a story of gory adventure for some later arrival. Only the stern censorship prevents the writing of this fiction in the form of letters for the edification of sweethearts and relatives at home and for publication in the "home paper." For instance:

Scene—A village where a battalion which had just returned from the trenches is billeted. Half a dozen soldiers stand in front of the candy shop talking to a soldier billeted in a neighboring village. He has not been to the trenches.

"Did you have any fights when you were up there?" asks the visiting soldier.

"Did we? Why, we had a fight every day and two or three every night," declared one of the returned boys. "One day 230 Germans came right over and attacked us with liquid fire, bombs and machine guns. We opened up on them, our artillery joined in, and in less than three minutes all except nineteen were stretched out dead."

He Got Stalled.

"Whew!" exclaimed the visitor. "What did you do with the nineteen?"

"Well—we took—I don't—" hesitated the young romancer who had not that of that detail.

"Divided them up into squads of six for palbearers," interrupted an un-havened sergeant more experienced in the spinning of yarns.

"And talk about airplanes! They were fighting over us all the time," began another hero. "One day I counted for an hour and 500 enemy airplanes flew over us. Then I got tired and stopped counting. We used to lie on our backs and shoot at them like birds."

"Did you capture lots of them?"

demanded the lone auditor.

"Well, we're not allowed to tell that," the story teller parried. "They always tell just beyond us and we could not see exactly how many came down."

"Remember that day when I brought down that big airplane, Bill?" asked another, introducing himself to the audience.

Bill remembered. It was his duty to remember.

It was coming right toward me and was close enough to me to see the bombs hanging under it like a bunch of grapes," said the new one. "I took just one shot and hit one of them; there was an explosion, and it disappeared—nothing left but smoke. All I found was a little piece of the aviator's boot, but I lost it."

Dutch A Nifty Guy.

That the young narrator has not been any nearer than eight miles to an airplane did not interfere with the glory of the exploit.

"Bill, tell him about the prisoner that Dutch caught," suggested another, turning to that stubby worthy who so far had functioned only as corroborating witness.

"All right," said Bill. "You know Dutch is able to spout that lingo, and one night he sneaked out of the trenches and went mousing around alone in that 'no man's land.' Pretty soon he joins up with four Germans and spins a tale to them, and it being dark they couldn't see what he was and thinks he was one of them. He gets to talking with one of the lads and steers him away from the others and has him almost to us when Dutch slips on a muddy spot and the big stiff goes away and leaves him. Course, he didn't really bring the guy in, but Dutch is some nifty bird, isn't he?"

As Dutch really had been in the trenches the story sounded well to the man who was listening.

"Say, fellow, them's good stories and you can tell them to the fellows back in your town," concluded the chief conversationalist. "If you want to stick around this afternoon we'll have some more for you, but it's mess time now and we've got to be moving."

Conscripts Face Stiffer Drill Schedules As Their Graduation Approaches

CAMP SHERMAN, OHIO, JAN. 21.—Drafted men have passed from the primary grades into the "high school" of military training now and their schedules of drill are getting stiffer each week.

For the week beginning today the 331st infantry, Cleveland, will occupy the rifle range.

Johnny Kilbane, boxing instructor, will have a busy week with forty men from the 308th engineers, 42 from the 324th field artillery and two platoons from the officers training school, taking fistic instructions.

Captain Owen, British bayonet instructor, will devote his time to lectures to officers in the school of the line on "The way to use the bayonet" and "Bayonet technique."

Lieut. Marquet, French bombing instructor, will show men in the officers training school how to throw hand grenades. Lieut. Michel, French trench expert, will lecture to and instruct one officer from each company in the 329th, 330th, 331st and 332nd regiments and 308th engineers on "basic principles of trench building."

Captain Martin, of France, heavy guard artist, will tell artillery officers about heavy firing.

Lieut. Tharley will train the 308th and 319th signal battalions on signals and liaison, while Lieut. Bernard of France, will take the 329th and second depot group of officers in hand on the machine gun range. Lieut. Lissimore, sniping and scouting, will instruct the 330th infantry and embryo officers and Captain Woodstock of England, will tell officers of the 229th infantry how to dig dugouts and help the machine gun battalions.

Captain Yoxall, trench mortar expert, will explain "What the artillery misses" to officers of the 329th, 330th and 332nd regiments and the trench mortar battery. He will also tell of "trench behaviour."

BRITISH TANK BRITANNIA, NOW IN DRIVE FOR RECRUITS, DID MARVELOUS STUNTS FOR CAMP UPTON SOLDIERS.

The big land-battleship Britannia, which recently astonished thousands of Brig. Gen. Evan M. Johnson's United States soldiers at Camp Upton by lumbering up almost impossible inclines, crushing big trees like match-wood and crossing "enemy" trenches amidst a raking machine gun fire, has started on a tour of the United States to stimulate recruiting for the British, Canadian and United States armies. The tank is sent out by Brig. Gen. W. A. White of the British and Canadian Recruiting Mission, and in personal command of the tank and its crew of veterans, all of whom have been wounded, is Captain Richard Haigh, who was twice wounded himself. Brig. Gen. White wants to show this wonderful war machine in action to about 250,000 Britishers and Canadians of military age with the idea of inspiring them to volunteer and do their plain duty to their country.

Owing to the fact that tanks are built to operate in mud and not on frozen ground, the Britannia will first visit the large centers of population in the south—Richmond, Atlanta, Augusta, Birmingham, Mobile, New Orleans (at Mardi Gras) and other cities—and will next crawl through the streets of Memphis, Louisville, etc., on its way to Chicago, the headquarters of Col. J. S. Dennis in charge of the Western Division. The tank will not reach Chicago until warmer weather sets in, because five miles of travel over

BRITISH FOOD TROUBLES AGAIN GIVEN AN AIRING

LONDON, JAN. 21.—Increasing attention is being given by the newspapers to food troubles and popular impatience with what is regarded widely as avoidable privations. The Times today prominently calls attention to the "persistence of the unequal distribution of food and its off-spring, the queue system," which, it says, is beginning to tell on the tempers of numbers of persons.

It refers to numerous protests and to the demands for rationing, which are finding an outlet in some instances in outbreaks of disorderliness. It writes sympathetically of people standing in long lines in the bitter weather prevalent in parts of England including London, and says it would be folly to ignore the obvious symptoms of unrest.

Numerous paragraphs appear in the newspapers recording demonstrations, unsatisfactory distribution, queues, sufferings, shortages, prosecutions for hoarding, and allegations of profiteering.

The labor correspondent of the Times says that it is evident that a situation is imminent which will tax the food department to the uttermost. He says there is no occasion for alarm, but a need of complete frankness and prompt action. The writer restates the view of the workers that not only the wealthy people able to escape queue troubles by the power of their purses, but they are getting all the supplies they require, while the poor stand for hours exposed to the weather and then often get nothing.

The workers also are convinced that an artificial scarcity has been created by the farmers, dealers, and speculators. The unrest, the writer continues, will be allayed only when the food controller convinces the average workingman that curtailment is unavoidable.

An instance of speculation, which is in nowise isolated, was given at Newport yesterday when Captain Williams, the national service representative there, declared he had evidence that a speculator bought a large catch of fish from south coast fishermen at a ridiculously low price and sold it at a profit of more than 1,000 per cent. As a result, he said, the public was compelled to pay more than to shillings for what had cost 3 shillings.

In view of the growing irritation the speech which Lord Rhonda, the food controller, is expected to make in London today is awaited with the greatest interest. It is understood the speech will cover the general food situation and that important statements will be made by the controller.

NEGLECTED COLDS LEAD TO PNEUMONIA

Many Lives Needlessly Sacrificed

Colds are always dangerous. They often develop into serious throat and lung troubles, pneumonia and bronchitis which often result fatally. The time to treat a cold is at the beginning; the best way to treat it is to begin taking Father John's Medicine at once because Father John's Medicine soothes and breaks the breathing passages, drives out the disease germs and relieves the cold in the natural way. It is safe for every member of the family to take because it does not contain alcohol or dangerous drugs in any form.

"COUGH CURES" FAILED

"Three years ago my oldest boy, Paul, had a terrible cold. Different kinds of 'cough cures' failed to help him. Then I gave him Father John's Medicine and his cough soon ceased. I also used it to build up the health of the boys and prevent them from getting cold." (Signed) D. Coutu, 70 High St., Haverhill, Mass. Guaranteed free from alcohol or dangerous drugs. All pure nourishment.

THEATRES

"HIS BRIDAL NIGHT"

On next Wednesday don't get flabbergasted if you should pass a pretty girl and upon turning the corner see a replica of the same. They are the Duane Twins and will appear in "His Bridal Night" at the Sixth Street Theatre Wednesday evening, Jan. 23. You can't tell them apart. Both are equally pretty, equally graceful, equally talented and they dress alike. And thereby hangs the tale of "His Bridal Night" wherein a young man has to tell which is his wife and which isn't, with the Duane Sisters to pick from. "His Bridal Night" is for lovers of laughs, lingers and music known as jingling. It is from the pen of Margaret Mayo whose "Twin Beds" made the nation's sides ache.

Frederick V. Bowers, star in "His Bridal Night" and composer of its music, is perhaps one of the most successful composers of popular songs in this country. Among some of his hits are "Always," "Because," "When I Think of You," "In the Early Morning," "Down Where The Coccoanuts Grow" and "No One But You." It is claimed that several new hits will be placed to his credit in "His Bridal Night" has toured far. For that piece he has composed sixteen numbers, none of which has been published.

Alma Youlin, who sings the prima donna role in "His Bridal Night" with Frederick V. Bowers, is a favorite soprano in musical comedy. She will be remembered for her appearance in the past two seasons with Hyman and McIntyre in "My Home Town Girl." It is said that Mr. Bowers has composed a number of beautiful songs particularly suited to her.

Harry Lillford, who will be seen in a comedy role in "His Bridal Night" at the Sixth Street Theatre, Wednesday January 23rd, is a comedian of note. He was a member of the original cast of the piece and his clever work added in the pronunciation of its success.

The book of "His Bridal Night" tells for two girls who look so much alike that no one can tell one from the other. They were hard to find but the Duane Twins were discovered in vaudeville and they filled the bill. It is claimed that they are so much alike that when pay day comes the manager of the company insists that both appear at once in order that he might not offer one the salaries of both.

BOLSHEVIKI

The chaos and turbulence which had already existed in Russia has been heightened by the drastic action of the Bolshevik group and they are threatening to use armed force again if the anti-Bolshevik members of the assembly attempt to hold a "stump" parliament in the capital.

Lenine's action in clearing the Tauride Palace with the bayonets of his troops did not cause any great surprise in view of the fact that the Bolshevik candidate for president of the assembly had lost out in the election. Sailors who had been re-enrolled into the Red Guard by Ensign Kreylenko, because of the Bolshevik commander in chief were stationed in front of the Tauride palace and machine guns were planted to sweep the streets.

Advice from the Russian capital today indicated that further disorders and street fighting was expected there.

Details of the rioting which marked the opening of the single session of the assembly have just been received and they show that the fighting was much more serious than the first reports had made out. It is now estimated from 15 to 20 persons were killed and at least 100 wounded. The first fight took place in the Latinskaya Prospekt, where men and women were caught under machine gun fire and moved down in the street.

Rioting broke out in Moscow coincident with the fighting in Petrograd and many persons were killed and wounded in that city also.

An unconfirmed report was received from Petrograd that an attempt had been made to assassinate Former Minister of Interior Tseretelli, leader of the Moderate Socialists because of the bitter attack he made against the Bolsheviks before the assembly meeting was broken up. He charged Lenine and Trotsky with plunging Russia into unspeakable woe and of trying to make her a vassal state of Germany.

It is now reported that the closing of the Austrian frontiers was due to the disorders in the industrial districts and not to troop movements as first believed.

There is unconfirmed report that the socialists have called a general strike in Russia. The Austrian press is becoming bolder in its attacks against the militarists and is roundly condemning the government for allowing the Pan-Germans to force their peace terms upon it.

Lord Mayor's Banquet.

What a lord mayor's banquet was like up to the seventeenth century may be guessed from Decker's description of one in "The Shoemaker's Holiday," where the chief guest was Henry V. After being told that a hundred tables were filled and to be filled with beef, pork, mutton, minced pies and marmalade, one reads that "venison pasties walk up and down piping hot, like sergeants; beef and breewess comes marching in dry-vats; fritters and pancakes comes trotting in the wheelbarrows; hens and sau-sages hopping in porters' baskets, collops and eggs in scuttles, and tarts and custards comes quavering in in multi-shovels."

WAR LEGISLATION IS DRAGGING IN SPITE OF ADMINISTRATION

WASHINGTON, JAN. 21.—Conversion efforts of administration leaders in the house to speed up consideration of important war time legislation are meeting with little success today.

The house was occupied with appropriation bills and the members have refused to be hurried. Word went out to chairmen of all committees conducting hearings on war measures to report the bills out on the floor of the house. In spite of their best efforts proceedings must continue to drag. It was doubtful today whether the administration railway bill would be reported before the end of the week. The railway bill was one of the measures upon which the president urged quick action and members of the I. C. C. were prepared to comply with this request. It was supposed when hearings were begun, that after Interstate Commerce Commissioner Anderson, who prepared the bill had explained its provisions to the committee and Judge Thomas had made his statement on behalf of the railways a favorable report could have been given. Many witnesses deputed to be heard, however, and the report on the bill was delayed for more than ten days.

Director General McAdoo was expected to take the stand again today, however, and only a few witnesses remained to be heard.

The house will pass one of the session's milestones late this afternoon, when the Indian appropriation bill carrying approximately eleven million for the civilization, education and support of Indians throughout the country, will be approved. The next appropriation bill to be taken up will be the agricultural measure which will be reported favorably to the house tomorrow or the following day.

The omnibus water power bill, recommended by President Wilson for speedy passage must be delayed until the railroad bill is out of the way. Sims is chairman of the new water power committee as well as of the committee with the railroad bill under consideration.

Circumstances indicated today that:

ed. Railway Director McAdoo received a report from A. H. Smith, director of the eastern railway systems, saying that not less than 10,000 employees have been released from tide-water and big eastern terminals and are now on their way back to the mining centers. This report said that the general improvement in conditions could be expected to continue. Inasmuch as new demurrage rates, ranging from 50 to 100 per cent higher than those previously in practice went into effect by order of Director McAdoo today it is believed that the general unloading of cars will be hastened.

Most of the railroads throughout the country today were refusing to accept freight of any sort. They had closed their freight depots to all incoming freight in order that they could work all men at top speed relieving the congestion in the freight houses.

The cold weather is reducing equipment at a dangerous rate. The severe cold is causing steel drawbars and brake rods to snap while hundreds of hopper cars have been put out of commission because the frozen snow and ice between the rails have caught on the hopper triggers and released the loads, causing derailling accidents. This is a condition that cannot be remedied until the weather moderates.

City subscribers should insist on a receipt from the carrier.
